"I really don't know why it is that all of us are so committed to the sea, except I think it's because in addition to the fact that the sea changes, and the light changes, and ships change, it's because we all came from the sea. And it is an interesting biological fact that all of us have in our veins the exact same percentage of salt in our blood that exists in the ocean, and therefore we have salt in our blood, in our sweat, in our tears. We are tied to the ocean. And we go back to the sea - Whether it is to sail or to watch it - we are going back from whence we came."

- John F. Kennedy

"We clear the harbour and the wind catches her sails and my beautiful ship leans over ever so gracefully and her elegant bow cuts cleanly into the increasing chop of the waves. I take a deep breath and my chest expands and my heart starts thumping so strongly, I fear the others might see it beat through the cloth of my jacket. I face the wind and my lips peel back from my teeth in a grin of pure joy."

- L.A. Meyer, Under the Jolly Roger: Being an account of the further nautical adventures of Jacky Faber

"Overhead, the wild huntsman of the storm passed continuously in one blare of mingled noises; screaming wind, straining timber, lashing rope's end, pounding block and bursting sea contributed; and I could have thought there was at times another, a more piercing, a more human note, that dominated all, like the wailing of an angel; I could have thought I knew the angel's name, and that his wings were black."

- Robert Louis Stevenson, the wrecker

When the storm rages fierce, hoist the sail to the top. Oh, how merry the Storm-King appears! Let us rise, let her drive, better founder than strike, for who strikes is a slave to his fears."

- The Northmen: A Viking Saga
